

Thoughts Of A Grieving Father. Ian, 2020

My darling princess Katie, why did you have to go,
If my love alone could cure you, you'd still be here I know

Why did he take you darling, it hurts more every day,
You were my loving daughter, perfect in every way

My heart is broken darling, now that you are gone,
It's so unfair my darling, it just is all so wrong

Why do I feel so empty, it gets worse every day,
Am I grieving darling, is it supposed to feel this way

Is it relief for you my princess, now you and pain are parted,
For those that you have left behind, the pain has only started

When you cried my darling, I wiped away your tears,
When you were scared my darling, I chased away your fears

Help me my darling, give me the strength to carry on,
I feel I'm being punished, though I've done nothing wrong

I listen to your music, it always makes me cry,
I can't accept that you are gone, nor the reasons why

Life just seems so empty, now you are not around,
My tears fall on your headstone, as I kneel upon the ground

They say I should be happy, as you're in a better place,
I can't be happy darling, tears still roll down my face

Until the time we meet again, I'll always love and miss you,
And if I were granted just one wish, it would be to hug and kiss you
